Gentlemen:-

I am enclosing herewith a letter which I received a short time ago from a man in Poland who appears to have a collection of foreign money which he desires to sell in this country.

I am not familiar with matters of this kind, but have been informed that your Society might be interested in such a collection. If you will examine the enclosed letter and advise me as to the possibility of Mr. Gatkaniewicz selling the collection in this country, I shall be pleased to communicate this fact to him.

Yours truly,

Dear Sir:

Your note is just at hand enclosing a letter from Mr. Gatkaniewicz of Poland. Unfortunately there is so little demand for this war-time money in this country that it would not pay your correspondent to have it sent over here. A large number of similar collections have already come to this country and the supply now is greater than the demand. Also, as far as I know, no one would buy it without seeing it.

Sincerely yours,

Curator.
